SAFETY TIPS FOR TOTS

1. Always assume that your child can do more than you think they can. Be prepared for the next phase in development before it occurs. For example, just because your toddler has never climbed up on the table doesn't mean it's safe to leave the scissors there. He just might climb to the table top the next time you leave the room.

2. A good way to discourage romps on the table top is to turn all the chairs backwards. This stops them for at least a little while. It's a good idea to start
